

Lock modes -

Striker or electro-mechanical lock mode – The relay will pulse for 1 second, momentarily before the opening sequence begins.

This limiting of the relay on time prevents the solenoid of the lock from overheating and burning out.

Whenever an electric lock is used it is necessary to install a separate battery backed power supply unit. The independent power supply fitted for the lock should match the maximum in-rush current of the lock and not the hold in current draw.